Tobacco Co-ops

The Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association has sold more than twenty-three million pounds of its redried bright tobacco of the 1922 and 1923 crops within the past thirty days, according to the latest statement of Richard R. Patterfon, manager of its leaf department. This demand for the association's tobaccos, according to Mr. Patterson, marks the increasing success of the organized farmers in selling their product to manufacturers and dealers and the satisfaction of the latter securing wholesale quantities of high grade products of guaranteed quality for uniform prices.

Massachusetts To Va

The Historic Milestone Cover that appears on the May 1 issue of The Youth's Companion is a graceful and unusual tribute to the state of Virginia. Instead of choosing a single incident in the history of the state, the publishers selected something of greater moment: the contribution that Virginia blood has made to the West. The cover depicts Cumberland Gap as it appeared in the days of Daniel Boone. It is reproduced in full color and carries the following text:

Through Cumberland Gap, the great southern gateway of the Alleghanies, Virginia, the mother of pioneers-as of Presidents, sent her children to the discovery and subjugation of the West. Dowered with courtesy, tolerance and hospitality as well as with courage and self-reliance, they took with them both the graces and the sterner virtues of the Old Dominion.

Massachusetts, the first established of the original northern colonies, thus greets her elder sister Virginia, of the old South, and offers her this assurance of appreciation and good will.

Richard T. Moss

R. T. Moss died at the home of his daughter Mrs. W. C. Harvey, Jr., near Oakville, Tuesday in the 78th year of his age. He is survived by the following daughters: Mesdames. J. C. Abbitt, W. C. Harvey, Jr., C. B. Lewis, and Miss Mattie Moss, of Appomattox; and Mrs. Daisey Saunders of Richmond.

Deceased was an offices of Liberty Chapel church where he had worshiped ever since the establishment of the church. He was a Civil War veteran, a kind and affectionate father, and citizen of high character.

His remains were interred Wednesday in the presence of a large crowd of friends and relatives at his old home, conducted by his pastor Rev. J. H. Gordon.

Pall bearers were J. W. Burge, Otho Martin, Ed. Lucado, Jim and John Scruggs, and N. R. Featherstone.

Honorary pall bearers were: W. B. Davidson, Radford Wheeler, Thos. H. Martin, Alonza Goodman, Thos. R. Scruggs, and Joseph Garrett.

Flower bearers—Miss Lewis, C. D. Lewis, Richard Harvey, Chas. Martin, Ada Lewis, Carrie E. Martin, (grand children,) and Miss Nellie Hubbard and A. R. Harwood.

The Alamo.

The Alamo, San Antonio, Tex., was originally a Franciscan mission house, built in 1722, and called San Antonio de Veleria. The building was used as a fort on occasions and called Fort Alamo.
